most common one is simply that movies are a fraction of the length of books. For example, Victor Hugo's mammoth classic Les Miserables tops out at over 650,000 words and, according to my Kindle, took me thirty-three hours to read. The latest movie adaptation has a running time of just under three hours.

In the 1950s, America underwent some major changes in the political and economic spheres, which in turn were responsible for its social makeover. Family became a powerful unit, efficient enough to subdue the demons of war that were haunting the common man. The public sentiment was to live a peaceful and a less complicated life.
