The Antiquarian Gustavo Faveron Patriau

"Gustavo Faverón Patriau's The Antiquarian is a dazzling and unforgettable meditation on deception, obsession, and the search for truth. How rare it is to find a novel of ideas that never fails to entertain. How rare it is to find a novel that marries intelligent, intricate plotting with richly rewarding prose.

The Antiquarian: Faverón Patriau, Gustavo, Mulligan ...

at times quite intriguing, overly formulaic at others, gustavo faverón patriau's the antiquarian (el anticuario) is a literary murder/psychological mystery with a decidedly bibliocentric bent. the first novel from the peruvian author and critic, the antiquarian tantalizes and educes, but often relies too heavily on its somewhat convoluted plot rather than let the strength of an already interesting premise unfold as it might. faverón patriau writes well enough (and clearly has a vivid imagination

El personaje central del libro es, sin embargo, Alan Turner, un agente contraespionaje enviado por Londres para investigar la desaparición. Le Carré usa el estilo brutal y sin escrúpulos del agente para crear una atmósfera opresiva, en la que cada miembro de la embajada, desde el embajador hasta el conserje, parece guardar un secreto determinante para la investigación.
